PILATUS PC-12

N337TP is a 2000 Pilatus PC-12. With the speed and pressurization of a King Air, and the cabin space and short field performance of the Grand Caravan, the PC-12 is a true performer—not to mention the ultimate in comfort, reliability and efficiency.

Configured for six or eight seats, the PC-12 boasts a 53" by 52" cargo door, sumptuous leather captain's chairs and a uniquely designed enclosed lavatory. Built in Switzerland, the PC-12 has developed an extraordinary operating reputation in the hands of such organizations as the Royal Canadian Mounted Police and the Royal Flying Doctor Service of Australia.

With its short-field performance, the Pilatus can easily service St. Barth's, Mustique, Culebra, Block Island, Fisher's Island and many island facilities in Maine. With its high-speed, high-altitude cruise, the PC-12 can also cover long distances efficiently.
